Penthouse apartment on Los Gases Street with 2 bedrooms and 1 bathroom, located in Torrevieja. This property offers all the charm of living on the top floor of a building, with that sense of privacy, light, and freedom that only the highest floors provide, in one of the most convenient and sought-after areas of the city. Living at the top in Torrevieja Living in a penthouse in Torrevieja is something special. It's not just about the height, but about how you experience daily life when you know you don't have neighbors above you, that the light enters differently, and that the sky seems closer. Los Gases Street is a well-known area of the city, surrounded by amenities, well-connected, and with a vibrant atmosphere year-round, which makes this penthouse feel connected to the true pulse of Torrevieja. Every time you step outside, you'll find yourself immersed in the essence of a Mediterranean city that blends long-time residents with people from many countries who have chosen this place for its climate and quality of life. Living here means waking up knowing that in just a few minutes you can be enjoying a coffee on a nearby terrace, doing your shopping at a local supermarket, strolling along the seafront promenade, or taking care of any errands without having to travel far. At the same time, arriving home and going up to the penthouse feels like coming full circle: you leave the hustle and bustle below and, upon entering, you regain silence, privacy, and tranquility. It's a perfect balance between being in the heart of everything and, at the same time, having your own elevated refuge. A penthouse that feels like a sanctuary This penthouse isn't just another floor; it feels like a small world of its own at the top of the building. The moment you step inside, the feeling is different from that of a typical apartment: there's more sky, more light, a greater sense of being in a space that's somewhat removed from the noise of the rest of the building. The two bedrooms and the bathroom are integrated into a layout designed for comfortable living, with no wasted space, and a logic that simplifies daily life. The bedrooms make the apartment very versatile. This could be the perfect home for a couple who want a master bedroom and a second room for guests, an office, or a dressing room; also for a small family looking for a practical and well-located place from which to explore Torrevieja on foot. The second room offers that flexibility that is appreciated over time: today it can be an office, tomorrow a child's room, the day after that a creative space or extra storage area if needed. The bathroom easily meets daily needs, allowing for organized routines, chaotic mornings, and comfortable use whether you live alone or with others. Overall, the penthouse conveys the feeling of a functional home, designed to make the most of every square meter while also leaving room for everyone to adapt it to their own style. Light, sky, and a sense of spaciousness One of the great charms of a penthouse in a city like Torrevieja is the direct connection with light. The elevated position means that natural light takes center stage practically all day long. This luminosity transforms the feeling of the home: the spaces seem larger, the atmosphere is more cheerful, and the passage of time is noticeable in how the light moves through the rooms. The sensation of being closer to the sky is real. Looking out the windows and seeing rooftops, domes, facades, and, in some places, the clear horizon, creates a special connection with the surroundings. On clear days, which are most of them in Torrevieja, the sun shines brightly, warming the air in winter and bringing life to mornings in any season. On cloudy days, the penthouse maintains a soft light that invites contemplation, reading, and relaxation. This combination of light and height gives the home a very particular energy. It's easy to imagine peaceful Sundays spent indoors, barely leaving the house,
